Niklas Rönnäng appointed new CEO of GARO E-mobility AB

GARO is continuing to strengthen its fast-growing company GARO E-mobility with the appointment of Niklas Rönnäng as the company's CEO. Niklas's most recent position was as sales director for NIBE Energy Systems, and he previously worked for SCA Packaging.

His knowledge and experience from the energy industry and growth companies provide Niklas with the right qualities and prerequisites to lead GARO's continued growth in E-mobility. In addition to his leading positions in the abovementioned growth companies, Niklas has also served as Chairman of all NIBE Energy Systems' Nordic companies and of an additional four companies in the NIBE Group.

"I am delighted to have the opportunity to be a part of GARO, which is an incredibly exciting company. To be a driving force in GARO E-mobility's continued journey of growth will be very gratifying. I am looking forward to this position and to meeting customers, partners and other stakeholders with products that are perfectly suited to modern times," says Niklas Rönnäng.

"E-mobility is the product area that has grown most rapidly in GARO, driven by increased electrical operation in the automotive and transportation sector. We are proud to present Niklas as a key individual in driving and leading the expansive journey forward," says Patrik Andersson, President and CEO of GARO.

Niklas will assume the position on 1 January 2022.
